APRIL 2025

Many people have been asking me about the implications of Neptune in Aries. Based on the symbolism and historic events, there are a few points worth noting. A couple of historic events stand out.

In 1533 when Neptune crossed into Aries, Pluto was in the early degrees of Aquarius as it is today. At that time, Mars joined Neptune at 0 Aries. This was a turbulent time in history, especially in English history. Henry VIII declared himself head (Aries) of the Church of England (Neptune) and married Anne Boleyn who was pregnant.

The last time Neptune crossed into Aries was on 14 April 1861. This was within a day of the beginning of the American Civil War. Neptune has just started its transition into Aries on 30 March. For full details get the recording here.

LIBRA FULL MOON

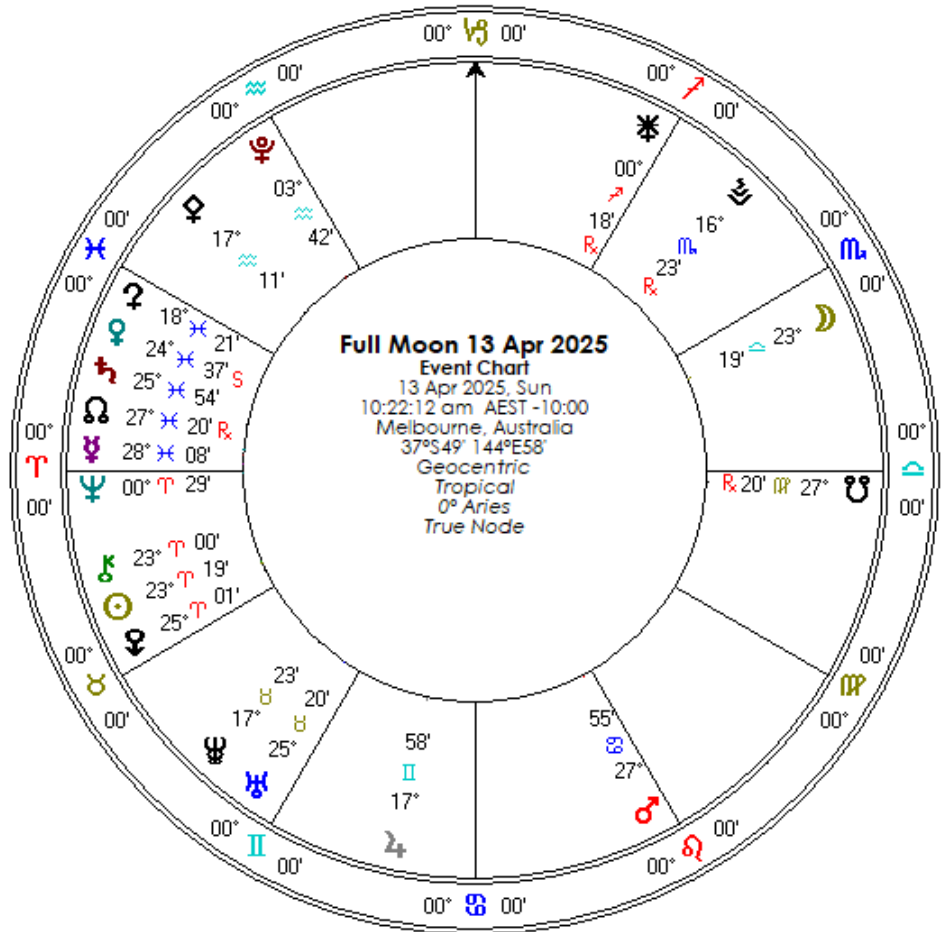

Neptune has now shifted into Aries, kicking off a new 13 year cycle. This will take a while to bed in, but already a new social ambience starting to emerge.

tion offers wide ranging opportunities for engaging with others, plus financial and investment possibilities and commitments that offer multiple benefits and rewards. These new ventures likely depend on whether we have been able to let go of arrangements that have not been in our best interests and make room for these new opportunities. Venus retro has asked us to recommit to our personal values, and step back from anything that is not worth our while.

This is yet another significant Full Moon, this one highlights Chiron and Eris which are tightly aligned with the Sun and Moon. Chiron is especially in the frame, offering opportunities for deep-seated emotional, body and soul healing.

Meanwhile, Venus stations direct and is tightly connected to Saturn with sextile aspects to Uranus. This combina-

TAURUS NEW SUPERMOON

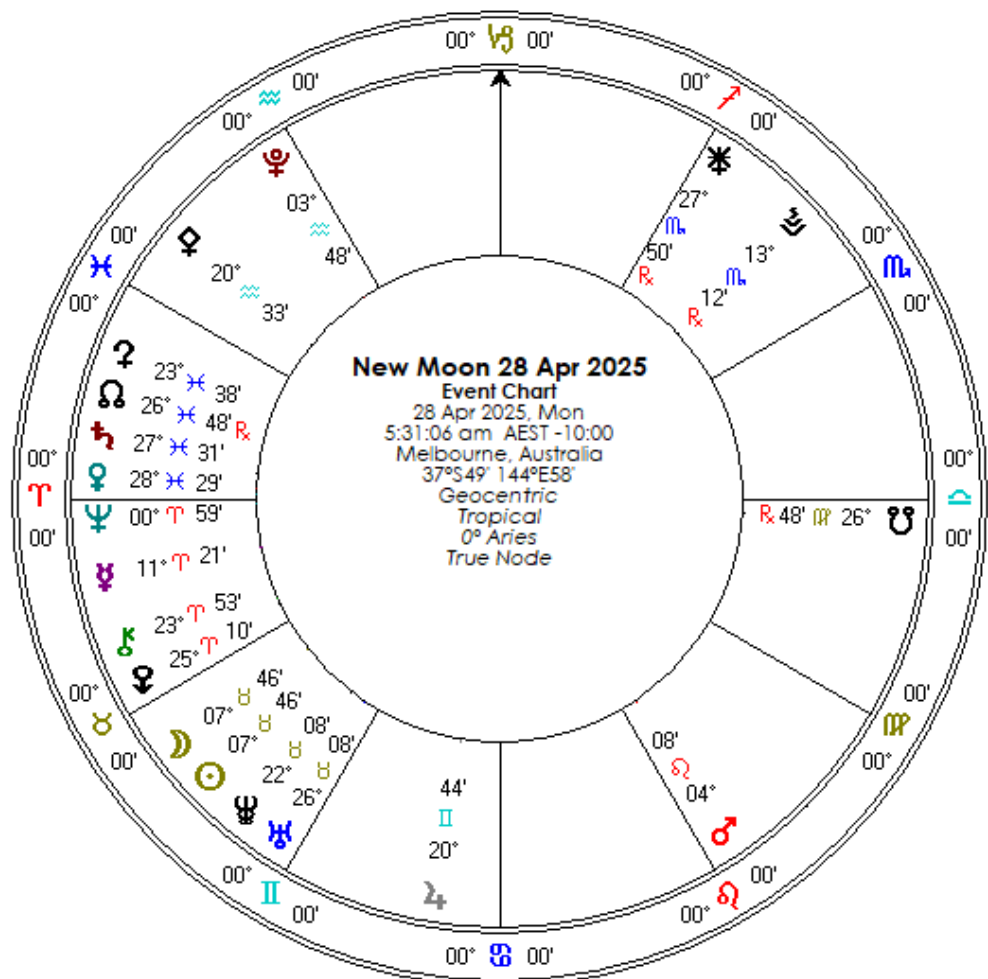

Earlier this year Mars opposed Pluto and this aspect is back in the frame at this New Moon.

This is a Supermoon, and it's squaring Mars and Pluto. The good news is that these are waning aspects, so any angst will probably not have the impact it did a few months back. Still it's best to avoid any direct confrontation or dangerous situations.

Venus will have something positive to contribute to this New Moon. She is still close to Saturn and continues to produce a happy sextile to Uranus, promoting creativity and progress towards our goals. The North Node is also involved in this pattern now, as is Ceres, facilitating multiple avenues we can use to our advantage.

Juno in Scorpio is offering assistance, helping to forge new relationships and connections. This is a wonderful New Moon for focusing on creative projects and breaking through barriers.

AUSTRALIAN FEDERAL ELECTION

The Australian federal election has just been called. On May 3 we go to the polls, but these days many people vote early. Still, the 8am election day chart is still worth examining.

There is no known birthtime for Anthony Albanese or for Peter Dutton. The top bi-wheel shows the transits to Peter Dutton's noon chart on May 3. The following transits are noteworthy.

T Saturn, T North Node, T Neptune and T Ceres are opposing Dutton's Pluto. T Uranus and Hygiea are opposing his Sun having recently crossed his Saturn and Juno. With all these transits in play, it seems highly unlikely that he will be elected. Of course, since no birth times are known, we can't rule out transits to the Moon or the angles. The main transit Albanese is having is a Mars return which is a good energetic transit to have in a busy election campaign. No obvious outer planet transits are in the frame. Compared to the numerous difficult transits to Dutton's chart, looking at these two noon charts, a Labor victory seems more likely. Regular readers of IN-sight will be aware that I prefer to use the Mel-
